

Let's Explore--

The Passaic's Lowlands

Former "tree and subshrub" (center background) and rock material in center of road before the well-known intersection at Hudson Park.

BY JOHN T. CLUNNEGAN

THERE was that day not so long ago when the city of Passaic was a forest. The road that runs from the city center to the Hudson River was a road where the woods were thick. Today's road is a road where the woods are gone. The road is a road where the woods are gone. The road is a road where the woods are gone.

There is a stream that flows through the city. The stream is a stream that flows through the city. The stream is a stream that flows through the city. The stream is a stream that flows through the city.

There is a stream that flows through the city. The stream is a stream that flows through the city. The stream is a stream that flows through the city. The stream is a stream that flows through the city. The stream is a stream that flows through the city.

There is a stream that flows through the city. The stream is a stream that flows through the city. The stream is a stream that flows through the city. The stream is a stream that flows through the city.

South Mountain Reservation, in the park of the city, is the site of the city's first reservation. The road that runs from the city center to the Hudson River is a road where the woods are gone. The road is a road where the woods are gone.

South Mountain Reservation, in the park of the city, is the site of the city's first reservation. The road that runs from the city center to the Hudson River is a road where the woods are gone. The road is a road where the woods are gone.

South Mountain Reservation, in the park of the city, is the site of the city's first reservation. The road that runs from the city center to the Hudson River is a road where the woods are gone. The road is a road where the woods are gone.

South Mountain Reservation, in the park of the city, is the site of the city's first reservation. The road that runs from the city center to the Hudson River is a road where the woods are gone. The road is a road where the woods are gone.

South Mountain Reservation, in the park of the city, is the site of the city's first reservation. The road that runs from the city center to the Hudson River is a road where the woods are gone. The road is a road where the woods are gone.

South Mountain Reservation, in the park of the city, is the site of the city's first reservation. The road that runs from the city center to the Hudson River is a road where the woods are gone. The road is a road where the woods are gone.

South Mountain Reservation, in the park of the city, is the site of the city's first reservation. The road that runs from the city center to the Hudson River is a road where the woods are gone. The road is a road where the woods are gone.

South Mountain Reservation, in the park of the city, is the site of the city's first reservation. The road that runs from the city center to the Hudson River is a road where the woods are gone. The road is a road where the woods are gone.

Interfield Bridge over the Passaic River, joining State and Hudson counties. Open is a road where the woods are gone. The road is a road where the woods are gone.

Passaic River that flows through the city. The stream is a stream that flows through the city. The stream is a stream that flows through the city. The stream is a stream that flows through the city.

DRY CLEANING

A SAVING OF 5¢ ON EVERY DRY-CLEANING BILL. SAVE 5¢ ON EVERY DRY-CLEANING BILL. SAVE 5¢ ON EVERY DRY-CLEANING BILL.

At 100 N. Market St. (at the corner of the city hall) in the city of Passaic, N. J.

The original S-FELDMAN & SONS